

JOB SEARCH RESOURCES

Searching for employment with the state of California:

<http://www.caljobs.ca.gov/>

- California's Employment Development Department's (EDD) Job Service has a primary mandate to facilitate the match between employers and qualified workers. While continuing its traditional function as the state's labor exchange, EDD's approach is geared to meet the challenges of the 21st century with increased efficiency and continuously improved customer service. CalJOBSSM plays a vital role in meeting that challenge.

Job Seekers - Create and store your resume and browse job listings. If you find suitable openings, you can make available a system generated resume for on-line viewing by prospective employers.

For More Information

If you have questions about CalJOBSSM, you may call (800)758-0398 during regular business hours (Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. PST). Hearing impaired can access a TTY using this same number

- SPB Transfer Determination Calculator

Classes displayed in this search are subject to transfer requirements as defined by laws and SPB Rules 430-435. Classes being considered for transferability MUST involve substantially the same level of duties, responsibilities, and salary. Once you have completed the class level and salary comparisons, please consult with the respective department's personnel office for additional information regarding the transfer.

The pay scales used by the calculator are the latest available from the State Controller's Office, but may not reflect all of the pay raises granted recently. You should verify the salary levels with your personnel office before making any commitments.

- What is Real California Jobs all about?
We endeavor to make it easier for California Job seekers to find employment with public agencies in California by consolidating job listing in one place.

General Employment Resources:

<Http://www.jobcentral.com/s-California-jobs.asp>

- DirectEmployers Association is a nonprofit HR consortium of leading global employers formed to improve labor market efficiency through the sharing of best practices, research and the development of technology. This site allows you to create an account to search for employment opportunities in the California area.

<Http://www.beyond.com/>

- Beyond.com claims to be the "largest network of niche career communities" on the Net. It essentially hooks together different organizations like PRJobForce.com and PhillyJobs.com all in one place, which makes it easy to find leads in your community.

<Http://www.careerbuilder.com/>

- As the Web's biggest job site, CareerBuilder gets more than 23 million visitors a month. The company has been around since 1995, and has developed an incredible network of listing sources and job search centers since that time.

<Http://www.craigslist.org/>

- The granddaddy of online classifieds gives those who are focused on searching for jobs within their communities an easy way to look. It might be one of the least-polished entities listed here, but the sheer number of local job listings makes up for it. Beware any deal involving Western Union, Moneygram, wire transfer, cashier check, money order, shipping, escrow, or any promise of transaction protection/certification/guarantee.

<Http://www.execu-search.com/>

- Execu|Search looks to be a selective, higher-tier job search property. Execu|Search screens and reviews every resume that is submitted, and helps employers find the best possible candidates for their open positions.

<http://www.hound.com/>

- Hound's search engine shows jobs from employer Web sites only. In theory, this cuts out duplicate listings and shows opportunities that are not posted on other job boards.

<http://www.indeed.com/>

- Indeed works as an aggregator for listings from major job Web sites, company Web sites, associations, and other online sources. Its simplicity and ease of use are its best features.

<http://www.jobcentral.com/>

- JobCentral is a service formed by a nonprofit consortium of U.S. corporations like IBM and Dell, which makes it ideal if you're looking for corporate job listings.

<http://www.jobserve.us/>

- JobServe claims it was "the world's first Internet recruitment service." In 2008, JobServe advertised more than 2.5 million jobs across 15 industry sectors.

<http://www.jobster.com/>

- Jobster uses an active approach to help employers and recruiting teams of all sizes find their candidates. The company calls its method "social recruiting," and it services 24 different job categories.

<http://www.linkedin.com/>

- Best known for being a social network for professionals, LinkedIn also has thorough job listings, some of which are exclusive to LinkedIn.

<http://www.monster.com/>

- In addition to being arguably the best-known global job-listings site, Monster also offers advice on resumes, interviewing, and salary information.

<http://www.oodle.com/job/>

- Oodle, which specializes in online classifieds, includes a job classifieds section that finely cuts job opportunities down to job title, category, industry, and company.

<http://www.ontargetjobs.com/>

- onTargetjobs owns a lot of smaller niche sites like BioSpace.com and MedHunters.com. Its expansive niche database allows users to find compatible job listings more easily than with general sites.

<http://www.simplyhired.com/>

- SimplyHired is similar to Indeed, as it also aggregates listings from major job Web sites, newspapers, company Web sites, and associations. However, the site goes a little deeper and allows users to send their resumes out for posting on five other sites for free.

<http://www.snagajob.com/>

- SnagAJob is basically the antithesis of sites like TheLadders and Execu|Search, as its focus is on hourly employment only. The site has partnered with companies like 7 Eleven, Red Lobster, and AMF, to bring the most up-to-date hourly job openings.

<http://www.theladders.com/>

- This job site has branded itself as the place to look for $100,000+ jobs only. Job seekers have to pay $30 per month to fully take advantage of the site's services.

<http://www.trovix.com/>

- Trovix's free search engine makes the job-search process more personalized. Users input their work experience and qualifications and the site matches results to what info they have given. Trovix also has an innovative feature called Job Map, which allows you to type in your location and see on Google Maps how many jobs are available in your area.

<http://www.tweetmyjobs.com/>

- One of the newest sites to take advantage of social media, TweetMyJobs supplies Twitter users with instantaneous job listings that are derived from TweetMyJobs' Job Channels.

<http://www.usajobs.com/>

- USAJobs is the official job site for the U.S. government. With the government looking to significantly increase spending during the next few years, looking at federal jobs might not be a bad move if you're in a tough place.

<http://hotjobs.yahoo.com/>

- As one of the biggest job sites on the Web, HotJobs distinguishes itself by focusing on features such as status (which shows how many times one's resume has been viewed) and the ability to block companies from seeing your resume.
